WALK-IN PANTRIES

A staple of the home for hundreds of years, a pantry is a small room or large walk-in cupboard for food, drinks, crockery, cutlery and other essentials. The modern-day design has become a hot must-have that can be integrated into your space as part of your cabinetry or as a standalone room. Steel-framed glazing is a popular way to divide the space as well as let in plenty of natural light. But more often than not, they are smaller and windowless – so smart task lighting is crucial, including downlighters and under-shelf strip lighting. Don't forget to include plug sockets, too, as a walk-in pantry is a great place for smaller appliances that you can then plug in and use in situ, such as blenders and stand mixers, which would take up ample worktop space in the main kitchen. You may also want to include a small sink, so plumbing will need to be considered early on. ➤
